Missed/Late Evaluation Policy

Assessment of learning contributes to students' success in their chosen program of study within the Faculty of Health Sciences & Wellness (FHSW). FHSW faculty/instructors, staff, and leadership are committed to promoting students' knowledge, skill, and personal character development that supports the preparation of professional, accountable, career-ready graduates.

FHSW faculty/instructors, staff, and leadership recognize and appreciate the need for flexibility, as at times unexpected circumstances may prevent students from meeting the set evaluation completion dates. The following policy outlines how late or missed assessments/assignments will be managed in the FHSW. This policy will be used by all courses, across all programs, but may vary slightly in its implementation.

Faculty and Instructors

Faculty/Instructors are expected to communicate to students, in writing, clear details about evaluations at the beginning of the course. This communication can be best accomplished through posting Blackboard announcements and pushing these announcements to student emails.

Faculty/Instructor responsibilities include:

- Communicate to students, in writing, the penalties or mark deductions that will be applied for late or missed assessments/assignments.
- Communicate to students, in writing, the options and process for missed assessments/assignments.
- Communicate with the Program Coordinator if a student has missed or submitted two or more late assessments/assignments to determine if any additional student support is required.

Students

Students are expected to complete assignments/assessments as outlined by the faculty/instructors by the expected deadline as indicated in the course outline and/or critical path.

Student responsibilities include:

- Communicate with the faculty/instructor via Humber email at least 24-hours prior (or as soon as possible) to the expected deadline if an assessment/assignment will be missed or submitted late.

Assignments

- Students may request an extension. All extension requests must be submitted at least 24 hours prior to the assignment due date. Extension requests can be made in person but must be followed up with written communication through Humber email to the faculty. The faculty's decision to approve/decline the extension request will be communicated in writing to the student along with the new deadline if the extension request is approved.
- In the absence of an approved extension, a late penalty may be applied to assignments not submitted by the deadline. A 5% deduction, from the assignment's total marks, may be applied for every 24 hours after the submission date (this includes weekends, but not public holidays as outlined in the Academic Calendar) to a maximum of 5 days, after which a mark of '0' will be awarded.
- Subsequent or repeated requests for extensions within a course will not necessarily be granted and will require consultation with the Program Coordinator/Associate Dean.

Assessments

- These include, but are not limited to, tests, quizzes, midterms, practical skills testing, oral evaluations to be completed within a specific location and timeframe.
- In the event of a missed assessment, students must contact the faculty/instructor in writing through Humber email. This email should be sent before the assessment takes place or as soon as possible – and not longer than 5 days – following the assessment date. Failure to contact the faculty/instructor within 5 days (this includes weekends, but not public holidays as outlined in the Academic Calendar) of the missed assessment will result in a mark of '0' being assigned.
- For the first occurrence that an assessment is missed in a course,
 - The faculty/instructor will determine when the student will be permitted to complete it at a different date/time. The faculty/instructor may use an alternate format for the rescheduled assessment, ensuring that learning outcomes for the missed assessment are met, and will communicate these details to the student.
 - Alternatively, the faculty/instructor may provide the option of adding the weight of the missed assessment to the final exam. If "weight to final" is an option provided by the faculty/instructor, the student will confirm in writing (email to faculty/instructor) their choice of either weight to final or the alternate assessment described above. If the student completes the alternate assessment, weight to final is no longer an option for that assessment for that student.
- Subsequent or repeated missed assessments within a course will not necessarily be granted and will require consultation with the Program Coordinator/Associate Dean.

Final Exams

- Please refer to the Humber College ITAL Academic Regulations for the exam deferral (postponement) process.
